The Kryl Symphony

Our town owes thanks to the Friday Music club for arranging the first major musical engagement in Hope in many years—the appearance of the Kryl Symphony Orchestra on the Saenger stage at 8 o'clock this Tuesday night.

Not only is the Kryl organization an authoritative musical group, but the word of its coming here has "caught on," already assuring the sponsors of

British Take Important Axis Supply Center

Capture of Gambut Threatens Axis Supply Lines in Libya

CAIRO—(P)—British forces, smashed west along the Libyan Mediterranean coast, Monday captured the important Axis supply center of Gambut, approximately halfway to the besieged British garrison at Tobruk, the British Middle East command announced Monday.

Its success, announced on the seventh day of invasion of Axis-Libya, followed hard upon the capture of Bardia, a move by which the British reached the Mediterranean to trap strong forces under the command of General Erwin Rommel entrenched along the Egyptian-Libyan border. An unofficial source said the 15,000 Axis prisoners had been taken up to Sunday.

British sources said that all together the Axis armies had been battered into four separate isolated groups with the empire forces closing in to annihilate them.

The main battle was pictured as a great clash of the world's most modern tanks and mechanized equipment with American-made machines playing a major role at Sidi Rezeh, 10 miles southwest of Tobruk.

This battle of the high command indicated, which has been fought and being fought with the utmost resolution by both sides had been in progress without cessation for over 48 hours.

Overhead British planes bombed and machine-gunned the Axis forces. The Germans were said to be rushing reinforcements to their air force and a British spokesman acknowledged that the air opposition in Libya was increasing. He added that the Axis strength was concentrated in the back areas rather than on the battlefield.

Rank losses steadily cut down the number of tanks taking part since reinforcements were not matching the destruction, the British said.

Loss of Gambut by the Germans was said to be likely to gravely hamper the Axis supply lines.

The Axis troops traveled along the Egyptian-Libyan border in the Halfaya Sidi Omar area were being pressed from the rear by Indian troops, the command said.

The British forces which broke from Tobruk last week were said to be consolidating their positions after capturing enemy field guns and other materials.

Recruit Coast Guard in Hope

Enlistments Now Being Accepted at Hope Postoffice

For the first time in its 151 years of colorful and history making existence the U. S. Coast Guard has opened a recruiting station in Arkansas so as to afford the young men in and around Hope an equal opportunity to enlist in one of Uncle Sam's oldest military organizations.

Hitherto young men in this section of the country have had to go either to Springfield, Mo., St. Louis, or Fort Worth, to enlist. Now that a recruiting station has been opened in the Little Rock, young men desiring to enlist in the Coast Guard may do so with considerable saving in both time and money.

Enlistments are being effected in the rate of apprentice seamen for white

Congressional Leaders to Discuss Labor

Meet Planned as 2 More Strikes Break Out With Threat of Others

WASHINGTON—(P)—President Roosevelt invited 10 members of congress and two representatives of the labor department Monday to meet with him at the White House Monday night to discuss labor legislation.

There was no indication from the White House whether Mr. Roosevelt had some specific measure in mind or merely wished to obtain views of the congressional delegation and labor department on measures already pending.

A general strike by 8,500 AFL machinists slowed production on millions of dollars in defense orders in the St. Louis area Monday as miners of the captive coal mines went back to work after a week-long strike.

The labor picture was definitely brighter than last week when captive miners were joined by thousands of commercial miners in sympathy strike but Roosevelt was said to favor legislation remedies against the recurrence of recent series of labor crises.

Congress, however, was in no mood Monday to let the strike matter drop and Speaker Rayburn was expected to announce that the house would take up labor legislation next week.

Representatives of the railway labor and management resumed conferences Monday at Mr. Roosevelt's request, in attempts to compromise differences which resulted in the 150,000 members of the railway operating unions calling a strike for December 7.

As the captive mines, which are owned by the Steel companies, re-opened production curtailed steel operations expanded. One blast furnace closed in the Birmingham area was expected to resume work Tuesday and at Carnegie, Ill., which closed 11 furnaces, all of which will be producing by Wednesday.

In Chicago 1,200 dock workers, members of the AFL and National Brotherhood of teamsters started a strike which threatened to tie up motor transport systems in Illinois and adjoining states.

Police were holding Richard Trotter, negro, Monday following an auto accident Sunday night in which the Trotter car crashed into another owned by Jim Henry, which was parked in front of the Henry home. Both cars were slightly damaged.

State police investigated a second accident on Highway 67 near Fulton early Monday in which a Babbitt Brook Dairy truck collided with another owned by a Fulton negro. No one was injured but both trucks were considerably damaged.

Miners Accept Mediation of Strike

United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis calls 40 members of the UMW policy board to order in their meeting at Washington during which they agreed to accept President Roosevelt's request for arbitration of the captive coal mine strike. At left is Kathryn Lewis, daughter of John L. Lewis. Miners will return to work immediately and await arbitration of the strike.

Kryl Symphony to Give Performance at the Saenger Tuesday Night Only

50 Musicians, Featured Soloists, Here One Night

Since the first announcement of Kryl's Symphony Orchestra appearance at the Saenger theater this Tuesday night such unusual interest in the event has been manifested by the whole community that a hearty welcome and an audience that will tax the limits of the theater are assured for Kryl and his musicians.

Saenger Co-operates

Manager Remmel Young of the Saenger reminded movie-goers Monday that the week-end film attraction at Hope's big house, "Week-end in Havana," will terminate its run with the Tuesday matinee in order to give way to the Kryl Symphony Orchestra engagement on the Saenger stage Tuesday night. Malco Theaters, Inc., owners of the Saenger and Rialto, have co-operated with the Friday Music club in making possible the appearance of this major musical organization in Hope.

Kryl's success with the masses and the classes alike is easily understood by those who study him. His genial personality, his unaffected manner and his genuineness of purpose win him an instant response from his audiences. Kryl has no mannerisms; no idiosyncrasies, he is just what he appears, a whole-souled, big-hearted, generous man. Above all these, Kryl is conscientious and gives the best that is in him at all times without reserve. He loves music for music's sake, no matter where he appears or under what conditions, he enters into the spirit of his art with all the enthusiasm and vigor of his whole being.

This present tour will include three appearances: in Mexico, three of which will be given in Mexico City as far as San Salvador where two concerts will be given—also four concerts in Havana, Cuba are scheduled as well as many appearances in Canada.

The Hope appearance is sponsored by the Friday Music club as an USO benefit.

2 More Nations to Sign With Axis

BERLIN—(AP)—Authorized German announcements Monday that 7 more governments would join the six present signers of the anti-comintern pact Tuesday.

The seven new signers are Finland, Denmark, Bulgaria, Rumania, Slovakia, Croatia, and Japanese sponsored Nanking government.

The arrangement was made by the United States and the Netherlands government and to which the government of Brazil has given whole-hearted approval, it was said.

Bauxite in Surinam furnishes upwards of 80 per cent of the requirement of the U. S. aluminum industry which is so vital to defense of the United States, the Western Hemisphere and to nations resisting aggression.

"Therefore it is necessary that safety of these mines should be assured," the announcement said.

Sen. Pilkinton to Speak Here

Will Address Hope Kiwanis Club Tuesday

Senator James H. Pilkinton will address the Hope Kiwanis Club at Hotel Henry in their Tuesday noon-day luncheon, the program committee announced Monday.

Senator Pilkinton, who is chairman of the speakers committee for the annual Christmas Seal sale will discuss the matter with the Kiwanis Club, who is to handle the personal solicitation this year, with Royce Weisenberger as chairman.

Kiwanis officials expressed the hope that a one hundred per cent attendance would be recorded.

U. S. Troops to Occupy Guiana

Will Protect Huge Aluminum Supplies There

WASHINGTON—(P)—The White House announced that a contingent of American troops would move into Dutch Guiana to protect valuable bauxite mines which supply the United States with large supplies of raw aluminum.

New Big Push Endangers the Soviet Capital

600,000 Nazis Drive Wedge to Within 31-Miles of City, Claim

KUIBLSHEV—(P)—German shock troops which drove a wedge between Moscow and Kalinin and swarmed against the Red army's second line of defense south and west of the capital put Moscow Monday in the most serious danger of the war.

Military sources declared, however, that on the southern front where German tanks battered their way into the Don river port of Rostov, the Red army launched its greatest counter attack of the war, driving the Germans back as much as 37 miles across the Donets Plateau.

The Russians declared that violent street fighting continued in Rostov itself.

Admit Critical Situation. Military reports said bluntly that the Red army had entered the most critical period of resistance against the fierce onslaught toward Moscow, aimed at taking "Most important objectives."

In this big drive the Germans were estimated to have hurled more than 40 divisions—roughly 600,000 men—and half their tank forces against the stubbornly defended approaches to the capital.

Dispatches said this powerful attacking force had thrust a new wedge into the Russian right wing in the vicinity of Klin, 50 miles northwest of Moscow in an attempt to cut between the capital and Kalinin.

31 Miles From Capital. The fighting there was the nearest to the capital yet reported by the Russians. (The Germans said Monday they smashed to about 31 miles from Moscow.)

Fighting off attacks after attack by tanks and mechanized forces the Russians declared they were holding firmly to positions at Kalinin and Volokolamsk, flanking the new wedge.

Fierce resistance also was being put up against the Nazis about Mozhaisk, 57 miles west of the capital and near Tula, 100 miles south of Moscow, the reports said.

It was in these sectors that the Russians acknowledged German gains "won by sheer weight of numbers" and said the assault waves were battering at the Red army's second lines of defense.

LADY BY REQUEST

THE STORY: If pretty Diana Tucker's frankness surprises old Ellen Curt, stepmother of handsome, famous writer and comedian Stephen Curt, she does not betray it, obviously likes the girl who has asked to marry him for six months and $10,000, explaining that he will have a $2,000,000 inheritance if he does not marry before he is 30 and that the woman he loves is married to another man. "I approve of her," says Ellen. Diana considers Stephen's offer the more seriously because she has just lost her job with his lawyers, Durkin and Thorpe, having resisted Thorpe's advances, does not want to return permanently to her hometown farm home. "I must talk it over with my father," she says, and Stephen arranges to drive down and meet her family.

MR. TUCKER'S OPINION?

CHAPTER VI

"HELLO, everybody!" Diana, having walked up from the bus in the cold moonlight, paused in the doorway of the dining room which also served as a winter sitting room. Vivid and glowing and beautiful, she looked, standing there.

"Diana!" Her mother rose from the table where she had been looking through a magazine and took her daughter in her arms. It was good to feel those arms about her, and to know that whatever happened she would always find security here.

Her father shut off the radio and young John, who limped a little because of an early attack of infantile paralysis, smiled at her. Herman, an "ag" student at the State University, had already gone back to school after his week-end holiday.

They were glad to see her and pined her with questions.

They went to bed early, and Diana, back once more in the clean, bare little room of her girlhood, felt for a moment as if she had never been away.

THE next morning Mrs. Tucker seemed anxious to know about her experiences in town. "We see a good deal of Bill Jackson," she offered hesitantly. "He's gotten in the habit of dropping by of evenings. He and your father discuss the world situation pretty generally. Bill always asks about you."

"I hope he comes while I'm here," Diana said sincerely.

"You spoke of having something else in view—"

"I'll tell you about it later," Diana said evasively.

She was not surprised when Diana asked, "Where would I be finding father about now?"

"Most likely in the barn seeing about the new calf. Better wrap up warmly—it's pretty cold."

Her father went quickly about his tasks and Diana watched him. There was about him a quiet dignity and strength, more apparent to his daughter now than ever before. Diana respected his opinion more than anyone else's in the world.

Finally, "There's something on your mind, Diana," he said.

Standing there in the shadowy barn on that cold November morning, the happenings of two days ago seemed as remote as some imaginary incident on Mars.

"Yes," she answered. "It's a little hard to explain."

He smiled. "Go slowly and I'll try not to be too dense."

She said, "I've met a very famous man—and I've received an offer of marriage."

He was still smiling. "Let's hear about the famous man first. I fancy you'd want to keep the other till last."

She knew he'd be excited about her knowing Stephen Curt, and she was not disappointed. He shot question after question at her.

"That's one man I've always wanted to talk to, face to face," he said admiringly.

"You'll have the opportunity," Diana answered. "He's coming down here Wednesday to take me back to town. You see—he's the man who wants to marry me."

Rapidly, before he could speak, she went into detail concerning the terms of Stephen's legacy, the fact that he was in love with a woman already married, that she would receive ten thousand dollars.

HE did not speak for a long time after she had finished. Shifting his one foot to the other, both from cold and nervousness, Diana realized that this once she did not really want her father's unbiased opinion. She simply wanted his approval.

Therefore, when finally he said, "I don't like it, Diana," gravely, she felt a strange let-down. From the look on his face she had more than half suspected what his verdict would be. She began to argue her cause—to show that she would really be doing nothing more than accepting a temporary job—an excellently paid one, too. She'd be happy and comfortable in Stephen Curt's home for a few months, then free to do as she pleased.

"Suppose you fall in love with him!" he suggested.

Diana considered that. Impossible! When she knew from the beginning that he loved someone else.

At last it ended by her father saying, "I'll say nothing more until I've talked with Stephen Curt. I can judge better then. Though a marriage of that sort goes against all I've ever been taught to believe in."

She had to be satisfied with that. She found herself filled with restlessness. There was so little to do at this time of year. She was glad when Bill Jackson joined them.

He was big and broad and kindly. He'd make the same kind of a husband her father had. Gentle, courteous, agreeable. She knew Bill's eyes followed her hungrily, but she would not meet them squarely.

At 6:30 Mr. Tucker said, "It's time for Stephen Curt," and went to the radio.

"Dad would rather miss his supper than Stephen Curt," John said laughing.

Her father's eyes met Diana's across the room and he smiled. "I think you ought to tell them, Curt, and that he'll be coming down day after tomorrow."

There was a murmur of surprise—they all looked at her strangely. She must have been a success in town, meeting people like Stephen Curt.

"Tell us what he's like, sis," John began, but his father held up a silencing hand.

"Later—let's listen now."

The announcer, after a few preliminary remarks, put Stephen on the air. At the sound of that commanding voice, Diana was once more back in Richard Thorpe's office, seeing Stephen standing at the window, looking out at the falling snow. She was laughing at her for wanting to be "lady-like." She was hearing his voice—but the words that came over the radio were not the words she heard.

When he had finished, her father turned off the radio. "I respect no man's opinions more than I do Curt's," he said, and smiled at Diana again. Was he, perhaps, getting accustomed to the idea that had at first so displeased him? Was the entirely human thought that this man whom he so admired might be a part of his family, of his life, even for a short time, outweighing more prudent considerations?

Five Bad Wolves

KETCHIKAN, Alaska —(AP)— Some bad little wolves, five of them, had a swell time fishing. On a cranberry-picking trip with his wife, Willis Jackson came upon the playful pups, pulling salmon from the riffles of a nearby shallow creek. Both sides of the creek were littered with the fish, killed on their way to spawning grounds.

P. S. Jackson took some wolf pelts home.

'Alfalfa Bill' Real Pessimist

Inflation, Starvation Ahead; Republic Is Gone

OKLAHOMA CITY —(AP)— William H. Murray advises city dwellers to get three acres in the country and a storm cellar—there's inflation ahead "and that means dictatorship."

Thus spoke Oklahoma's former governor as he turned his 72nd year, still vigorous, still interested in politics, still critical of the New Deal he has fought so long.

"Now if I were a city dweller," he told an interviewer, "I'd get about three acres somewhere out in the country, away from a main highway. I'd have a cellar and I'd begin to can vegetables and fruit."

"I'd get all the specie I could. Paper money won't be worth anything. I'd put those canned vegetables in a hole in the ground, bury them, so I'd have something to eat when the trouble comes."

Murray said a 5-4 decision of the United States Supreme Court in 1871 put the country on the road to inflation by permitting issuance of paper money and the present administration is vouching down that route.

Down in the southeastern Oklahoma mountains Murray has a farm on Yashau Creek and when and if the storm gathers that's where he will be. He thinks he'll be using his cellar in four or five years.

"There will be tremendous disorders in the cities," he asserted. "I would not want to be in the city."

But Murray's picture of things to come was not all deep indigo.

"I think," he said, "that the republic is gone. But it will come back, just as the French republic came back after Napoleon. But it will be a generation before we will dare to be free again."

J. S. Monroe Is Given Tribute

Quorum Court in Memorial to Late Courthouse Figure

Editor The Star: On November 17,

Hempstead County Quorum Court by unanimous vote of the Court a Committee was appointed to write an obituary on the life of the Hon. J. S. Monroe and ordered that a copy be spread on the County records, a copy sent to his wife, and a copy sent to each county paper.

On August 13, 1941, death came to our County claiming one of our most beloved citizens, J. S. Monroe. Mr. Monroe was born at Washington, in Hempstead County, Arkansas, July 30, 1869, being 72 years 1 month and 13 days of age. He united with the Methodist Church at Washington, 1941, at a regular meeting of the when a young man and held membership in the same church until death.

He was married to Miss Elizabeth Thompson, in the year 1895. To this union was born one child. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Lucille Carrigan.

Beginning at twenty-one years of age, Mr. Monroe spent his entire life as a servant of Hempstead County. He served as County Clerk from 1895 to 1899, and was elected Circuit Clerk in 1903 serving 4 years. The balance of his life was spent in the Hempstead County Court House. He served as deputy in every elective office in Hempstead County.

Mr. Monroe was an honest upright Christian gentleman. As a public citizen he had the respect of every one. He was not only a great source of information but was kind and honest with every one that he came in contact with. Every official of Hempstead County looked to him as their guide and counselor, and every citizen came to him with their troubles and problems on all occasions they found the same kind friendly smile, and on every occasion each one went away perfectly satisfied.
